Cabaret Variety, the Waveland Players' latest artistic endeavor, opens tomorrow night at 8 p.m. at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue.

Other performances will be presented Saturday at 8 p.m., Sunday at 3 p.m., and again next Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the same hours. Tickets are $3 and are available at the door. Regaining naval superiority to be costly

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, entitled "The Role of Naval Superiority in U.S. Military Strategy," by Stephen A. Cashmore, editor of the Sea Coast Echo, is published in the Sea Coast Echo by that organization.

Testifying before Congress last February, Admiral Thomas Hayward, Chief of Naval Operations, made it plain that the "aim margin of superiority" once enjoyed by the U.S. over the Soviet fleet had evaporated.

The Admiral was supported in his testimony by Secretary of the Navy John Lehman.

Lehman told the committee that if the U.S. was to regain superiority at sea, it must expand the fleet by nearly one-third, to 600 ships organized around 15 carrier battle groups.

Given the views of Admiral

Hayward and Secretary Lehman, few people were surprised when, on July 1, it was announced that the Navy would seek Congressional approval for a new, four-year, $120 billion shipbuilding and aircraft procurement program.

Designed to meet the goal of a 600-ship fleet, the program will add 148 new or reactivated ships, including three aircraft carriers and nearly 1,900 aircraft to the fleet. The program is certain to generate opposition. Some critics will question Admiral Hayward's analysis of the naval balance. Others will question Mr. Lehman's reliance on carriers as the principal ships of the fleet.

Still others will question the feasibility of reactivating four lower-class battleships and two Essex-class carriers, all of which were built during WW II. Many will question the $120 billion price tag.

questions will require an answer. But, these are technical matters, and not nearly so important as the main premise of Admiral Hayward and Mr. Lehman: that the U.S. requires naval superiority over the Soviet Union.

Since the turn of the century the U.S. has fought its wars, with the possible exception of the war against Japan, in the manner of a "continental power." Twice in Korea and in Vietnam, the U.S. sought victory by attacking the enemy at his strongest point and, through the application of superior military power, bludgeoning him into surrender.

This method of waging war, especially in Europe, was only possible due to the congruence of three strategic variables. First, America's allies prevented the enemy from achieving a quick victory. Second, the U.S. and its allies commanded the maritime approaches to the war zone, allowing the U.S. to ship men and material to the zone in relative safety. Third, the combination of these two strategic factors gave the U.S. time to provide the military power needed to overwhelm the enemy.

Being variables, however, these three strategic factors were subject to change, and they have changed. So far have they changed in the last 15 years, in fact, that Secretary of Defense Weinberger believes that the U.S. ought to abandon the continental strategy which was based upon them.

In a recent speech, Mr. Weinberger argued that the U.S. has "become an island power." Calling to mind the massive Soviet arms buildup since 1965, he declared that in event of war with the Soviet Union it should be the policy of the U.S. to "launch counter-offensives in other regions and try to exploit the aggressor's weaknesses wherever they exist."

The region, other than which the U.S. must be prepared to fight in, is, of course, the central front in Europe. The facts of the situation there, as they relate to the three variables outlined above, support Mr. Weinberger's argument.

First, the Soviet Union and its allies have in position, or immediately available, an army which outnumbered that of the U.S. and its allies by nearly three to one in divisions of troops, two to one in tactical aircraft, and nearly six to one in tanks.

Second, the Soviet fleet outnumbered that of the U.S. by about 100 major surface combatants. It enjoys an advantage of nearly three to one in attack submarines, the weapon with which Hitler almost brought Britain to surrender in WW II.

Taken together, these two Soviet strategic advantages make it unlikely that in the event of war, the U.S. would have the time to convert its industrial base to a wartime footing and to ship the men and material required to prevent the Soviets from overrunning Europe. Thus the contention of the Secretary of Defense that the U.S. must reconsider its war-fighting strategy.

It is the essence of "island power" strategy to deploy forces in areas distant from the central front, but nevertheless vital to the Soviet Union, so as to compel it to defend those areas by withdrawing troops from the central front. If the Soviets are threatened in a sufficiently large number of places, this strategy will, in time, reduce Soviet superiority on the central front to manageable proportions.

Once that has been accomplished, the superior industrial and latent military power of the U.S. and its allies can be brought to bear on the central front with some prospect of achieving victory.

The pursuit of an "island power" strategy depends on the first instance on the naval superiority of the U.S. The Navy must be able to cross the world's oceans in relative safety. Once off the coast of the Eurasian landmass it must be superior at the point of concentration to those elements of the Soviet fleet which would attempt to disrupt its operations. Without naval superiority such a strategy is impossible.

An "island power" strategy is not without its costs. Such a strategy requires time to take effect, and in war the passage of time is measured in the loss of life and property.

Thus, it would behoove the U.S. if the Secretary of Defense is right about the obsolescence of our traditional "continental power" strategy, to prepare itself in peacetime to execute an "island power" strategy.

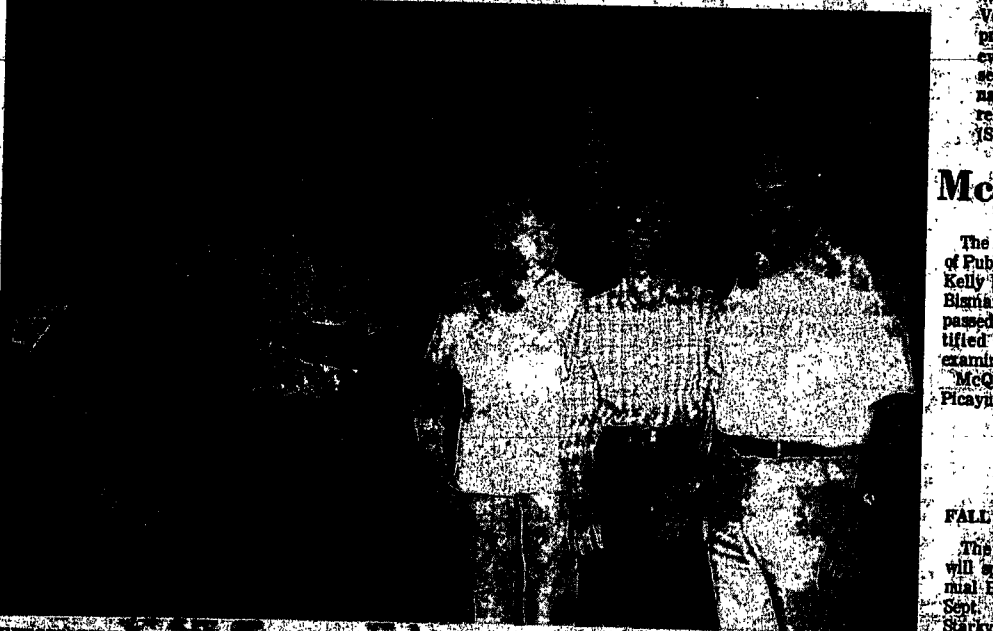

For if the Soviets know that the U.S., like Churchill's England, would not cease in its efforts to defeat them, they may be less likely to precipitate war.

If the U.S. is to adopt an "island power" strategy, it must regain naval superiority. The Navy's new $120 billion program is designed to achieve that end. It is the responsibility of professionals to decide the technical questions related to that program.

It is the responsibility of the public to decide whether it is willing to assume the costs and bear the burdens that such a strategy will impose on them.

SQUAD CAR COLLISION—Hancock County Sheriff's Deputies Glen Strong, left, and Ramon Cuevas prepare report on accident Friday involving a Bay St. Louis Police Department patrol car and a pickup truck on US-90 at Second Street. The truck, driven by Phillip D. Westmoreland of Franklin, La., was travelling west on the highway and the patrol car, driven by Officer Gordon Campbell, was proceeding north on Second Street when the accident occurred early Friday evening. According to the deputies' report, Campbell was entering a left lane earlier. The accident report lists an apparent failure by Campbell to yield right-of-way as cause of the accident. No citations were issued, the deputies said. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

LEETOWN FIRE CHIEF—James Roster, right, president of the Leetown Fire Department, briefs members of the Leetown Fire Department in one of the newest in the county, according to Roster, "growing all the time in volunteers and equipment." (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

SIGNING PROCLAMATION—New Pass Christian Mayor Gordon E. Bishop, seated, signs a proclamation joining a presidential observance of the recent "National Prisoner of War—Missing in Action Day" as Cmdr. Jessie Morris of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 5331 and Mary Fedele, president of VFW Auxiliary No. 5331, participate the City Hall event. The proclamation recognizes that some 2,500 American servicemen are still unaccounted for as a result of the "Vietnam Conflict" and urges the Socialist Republic of Vietnam to release information regarding these missing Americans. BY WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The closed discussion was conducted during a '15-minute recess' halfway through a regular meeting in the supervisor's conference room.

Gex explained in the open session that the State House and Senate are 'concerned about redistricting' and formulation of a final legal description.

County leaders have also been meeting behind closed doors daily to review local agency budgets in formulation of Hancock's 1981-1982 financial plan.

"If you don't conduct a board vote the county is automatically placed under the unit system," he added.

Leonard-Hearns bout to be shown in Biloxi

The welterweight boxing match between Sugar Ray Leonard and Tommy Hearns, slated for Sept. 16 in Las Vegas, Nev., will be aired on closed circuit television in the Mississippi Coast Coliseum in Biloxi.

Leonard, Olympic gold medal winner and current World Boxing Council welterweight champ, has lost only to Roberto Duran in 31 professional bouts.

He dropped a decision to Duran in Montreal, then avenged that loss in a return match in New Orleans, when Duran withdrew in the eighth round.

Hearns, called the "Hitman" is World Boxing Association welterweight king and is undefeated in 32 bouts, winning 30 by knockout.

The two champions appeared on the same closed circuit TV program last month.

Leonard scored a ninth round knockout over WBA junior middleweight champ

Ayub Kalule, who was previously undefeated in 32 pro outings.

Hearns kayoed Pablo Baez in the fourth round, setting the stage for the fight that has been billed as "The Showdown."

Leonard is credited with helping bring big purses to "little" fighters, and has already earned more money than any fighter outside of the heavyweight ranks. Each of his professional bouts has been aired on live television or closed circuit TV.

Hearns at 6-1, is one of the tallest fighters to compete in the welterweight class, and is considered the hardest puncher in his weight division.

There will be three other bouts on the card, to be announced at a later date.

Tickets will be available at the coliseum and the regular ticket outlets in about two weeks, according to King of The Hill Productions, promoters of the TV event.

The state recognized record is 100 pounds with David Harvill entering only a 100-pound limit race. Harvill was the first to land the tarpon in the state. The tarpon was caught at 10:30 a.m. and weighed 37 pounds. It was the third tarpon for Harvill, having caught a 36-pounder when he was 14-year-old and another 100-pounder. PRC opens two-a-days next week

Pearl River Junior College begins football practice August 14.

"We're anxious to get started," said Arban, who is starting his seventh year as headmaster of the Wildcats. "I must admit we're all having moments of apprehension about that first meeting."

On the blackboard behind Arban's desk is the last name listing of all the Wildcat players. In every position there are at least three names, with sophomore veterans heading all the positions.

The thing that worries Arban is how many of those names will have to be erased because of last minute no-shows. "Some of the faces may be missing," Arban said. "We always have a few sophomores and freshmen we're counting on decide not to report at the last minute."

college coaches' golf tournament for the third time in a row.

"We had a smooth meeting," Arban said, "no real waves were made, rules, regulations and eligibilities were the major topics of discussion."

Arban said he was expecting 70 players to report at 9 a.m. on Friday, August 14. "That morning will be spent trying on equipment and checking in the dorm," Arban said.

The first practice of the '81 season is set for that afternoon at 3 p.m. The first squad meeting is planned for 7 p.m.

According to Arban, the Wildcats will practice from 9 until 11 a.m. and 4-6 p.m. each day the following week. "We'll get in as many two-a-days as we can," Arban said. "Of course, the first few days will be for conditioning and going over fundamentals."

Seabees schedule softball tourney

The Morale, Welfare and Recreation Department (MWR) at the Naval Construction Battalion Center, Gulfport, will host its annual slo-pitch softball tournament August 13-18.

tourney being played all day Saturday and Sunday.

The tourney will be limited to the first 16 "Class B" teams in the men's division and the first eight "Class B" teams in the women's division.

Deadline for entry will be Aug. 7 and fees are $45 for men and $45 for women's teams. Each team will furnish its own softballs.

Officials are being provided by the Navy.

Trophy jackets will be given to each member of the first place teams in each division. In addition to the winning team trophy.

Team trophies will be given for second and third place winners.

For information, call Ray Phillips (865-2251) or Ted Ingram (865-2355) at the Seabee Center's MWR offices.

At this point the PRC head coach said he has heard rumors that a couple players may not be planning on coming. "But I've also heard that a couple who have signed senior college scholarships may walk-on and try to make the team. We'll just have to wait and see."

Last week all the PRC coaches had a chance to relax at the high school and college coaching clinic held in Jackson. In fact, Arban won the first flight in the annual

First state-sponsored bicycle tour slated

Bicyclists from throughout the Southeast are expected for the first Middle Mississippi Bicycle Tour being sponsored by the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, August 22 and 23.

Bowman stalking 'rough' fish

By TOM HOAR
Daily Mississippi
News Service

The luxury bass boat, like so many others on the lake, skimmed the surface of the water as it made its way toward a prime fishing area. The occupants of the boat sought out shallow, warm water. The bass were in the deeper areas of Sardis Reservoir, and the fishermen knew this...they weren't after bass.

The fishermen, who stopped, sat quietly in the cushioned pedestal seats of the boat, saying little and concentrating on spotting fish. For hours they moved slowly through the shallow water, propelled by the electric trolling motor positioned on the front of the boat.

Suddenly, a fish was spotted. It lay near the surface, sunning. The fisherman in the front of the boat moved slowly, so his quarry wouldn't spook. He reached for his tackle; not an expensive rod and reel, but a longbow.

A huge gar, a prehistoric throwback from times past, lay 20 feet from the boat. It had nothing to fear, nothing to Sardin dard tangle with it. A long snout, full of sharp teeth, was its main line of defense. The fish, six feet long and as big around as a man's leg, had no enemies in the lake. Nothing preyed upon gar, they were just too mean and too ugly.

The man in the front of the boat drew the bow, sighted down the arrow and released. The arrow shot forward, pulling behind it a braided nylon line which unravelled from a reel fixed to the bow's face.

If the fish was hit, the man would have to grab the line and wind it back onto the reel. That would be no easy task if there happened to be 75 pounds of mad gar trying to go the other way.

The aim was true and the fish was hit far back, too far back near the tail.

At the hit, the water exploded as the gar thrashed and fought, trying to escape. It took the fisherman over 30 minutes to control the monster, but at last, he did.

The fish was brought alongside the boat, dispatched with a club, and brought aboard.

The fishermen moved on, hoping to take a few more fish before dark.

Each year, the sport of bowfishing has been gaining popularity in Mississippi.

All six major reservoirs in the state hold great concentrations of gar, buffalo, carp and grunion, the objects of a bowfisherman's attention. Only these "rough" or non-game species of fish can be taken by this method.

In addition to reservoirs, rough fish inhabit many streams, rivers, ponds and lakes across the state. There are plenty of fish available for this sport, and they can be taken year-round by using this method.

On Sardis and Enid Reservoirs in north-central Mississippi the prime attraction for bowfishermen is the carp. Carp make spawning runs into shallow water during the spring on these two reservoirs, and they can often fast and furious action. Carp are extremely strong fish, and a full-size carp can be difficult to control. Carp, contrary to popular belief, do make excellent eating when they are properly prepared. They can be made palatable, but one word of caution: gar eggs are extremely poisonous.

The fish is safe to eat, but eating the eggs can result in extreme sickness and even death. It isn't difficult to hit fish with a bow if archers remember to sight beneath their target.

Complete bowfishing outfits, bows, reels and fishing arrows (with a harpoon-like barb for holding fish) are available at most sporting goods stores.

Some knowledge of fish species is required, so that game fish aren't taken by mistake. The only legal requirement placed on bow fishermen is that they possess a fishing license.

During periods of high water, a boat need not be used. Wading and shooting rough fish can be very exciting.

Areas on Sardis which produce good catches include Hurricane Landing, Coontown Crossing and the Tallahatchie River.

Clean Air Act changes termed step backward

The National Wildlife Federation has called on members of two Congressional committees to reject "outright changes" proposed by the Reagan Administration which would, according to NWF, "gut major sections" of the 1970 Clean Air Act, which is up for renewal this year.

The Administration's proposals, a copy of which was obtained by the NWF, are an "unplanned and unjustified step backward in our nation's effort to improve air quality," wrote Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the NWF, to members of the House Committee on Energy and Commerce and the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Hair noted in his letter that the Administration proposals "ignore the critical air pollution problem of acid rain, which has killed hundreds of lakes in the northeastern U.S. and threatens to spread to other regions."

Instead, the Administration changes would end current requirements that all new coal-fired plants install "scrubbers" to reduce sulfur emissions. In addition, the nitrogen oxide emission standard for automobiles would be relaxed.

Acid rain is caused when emissions of sulfur oxides from coal-burning plants and nitrogen oxides from automobiles and power plants mix with water vapor in the air and are converted into acids.

Increased emissions will "exacerbate the acid precipitation problem," Hair wrote, "needlessly destroying valuable fisheries and other natural and man-made resources for millions of Americans and further straining our relations with Canada."

Hair also emphasized that the proposals, sent to the White House by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, would "delay regulation of additional airborne toxic pollutants and would significantly reduce the degree of control for toxic emissions to an inadequate level."

The proposals come at a time when Americans are becoming more and more concerned about attempts to weaken the Clean Air Act. Hair pointed out, noting that a recent Harris poll indicates that 66 percent of Americans believe the Clean Air Act should not be weakened.

The National Wildlife Federation, with its 4.6 million members and supporters, is a member of the Clean Air Coalition, comprised of conservation, labor, consumer, and civic groups pushing for passage of a strong Clean Air Act in 1981.

Falcon pre-season tv schedules announced

WTBS-TV, Channel 7 on Hancock Cable, will kick off the professional football season Saturday when the Super Bowl winning Oakland Raiders meet the NFC West Champion Atlanta Falcons in the first of four exhibition games to be televised.

The Falcons are coming off their best season ever, posting 12 wins and capturing their first division championship.

They feature one of the most explosive offenses in football led by quarterback Steve Bartkowski who in 1980 completed a club record 237 passes for 3,544 yards and 31 touchdowns.

Reading those stats one might consider Atlanta to be a one dimensional team, but they also boast the number two running back in the league, William Andrews, who trailed only Earl Campbell in yards per carry averaging 4.9 yards every time he got the ball.

Andrews also broke a club record in 1980 with a total of 1,308 yards.

The Falcons' pre-season opposition includes:

Game No. 1 — Atlanta at Oakland. The Raiders were led by their second string quarterback (Jim Plunkett) and a generally unknown linebacker (Rod Martin) to the team's third Super Bowl Championship.

Their win over the Eagles in Super Bowl XV was highlighted by a Super Bowl record 80 yard touchdown pass from Plunkett to Kenny King, and by Martin's three interceptions. (Telecast: Saturday, August 8, 8 p.m.)

Game No. 2 — New York Jets at Atlanta. Of the Falcons' four 1980 losses, one came at the hands of the Jets in what had to be one of the biggest upsets of the season.

The Jets are a struggling team that challenges its opponents with the "fastest receiving team in the game," Walter Walker and running back Lam Jones. (Telecast: Saturday, August 15 at approximately 11:30 a.m. and Sunday, August 16 at noon.)

Game No. 3 — Atlanta at Minnesota. The Vikings are another of the four teams to defeat the Falcons in 1980 in a heart-breaking 24-23 defeat of Atlanta in the season opener. Minnesota features the deadly duo of quarterback Tommy Kramer and receiver Ahmad Rashad. (Telecast: Saturday August 22 at 8 p.m.)

Game No. 4 — Tampa Bay at Atlanta. For fans who like their games to be of the high scoring variety, the Falcons and the Buccaneers should be right on target.

Atlanta's Bartkowski to Alfred Jackson combination against Tampa's Doug Williams and Ricky Bell could be an offensive explosion. (Telecast: Friday, August 28 at approximately 11 p.m. and Saturday, August 29 at 1:30 p.m.)

Governor's fitness award available

Governor William Winter has established the Governor's Sports Award program to encourage Mississippians to improve the State's exercise and fitness level.

Running, bicycling, swimming and soccer are the lifetime sports that are being featured initially by the award.

To earn the prestigious award, one must select one or more activities, keep a personal fitness log that is provided, meet the qualifying standards for the selected sport, and submit the fitness log for verification.

The award consists of a four-color embroidered patch featuring the Olympic symbol for the selected sport and the State of Mississippi, a cloisonne enameled lapel pin, and a certificate signed by the governor.

"The goal of the program is not to only recognize those who excel in a sport," said Lee Dukes, executive director of the year-old Governor's Council on Physical Fitness and Sport, "but to also give credit to the thousands of Mississippians who are realizing the values of good physical fitness."

To earn the running award, one must run 150 miles within four-month period. At least two miles must be run in an outing for it to count, and no more than five miles a day may count toward the total.

The bicycling award requires 400 miles of cycling on bicycles that have more than five gears, and 300 miles on those with five or fewer gears. To earn the soccer award, 40 hours of activity is required, and the swimming requirements vary from 10 to 20 miles, depending on the age of the swimmer.

For more information and a personal fitness log, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Governor's Sports Award, 723 N. President Street, Suite 450, Jackson, MS 39201.

GULF SHRIMPERS
Galveston Bay fishermen in Texas are finding conflict on those waters — conflict brought about by inflation, foreign competition, the influx of Vietnamese refugees and government regulation.

A report on how these problems affect Gulf fishermen is given in "Fishing Troubled Waters," a documentary in the "U.S. Chronicle" series with host Jim Lehrer. It can be seen at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, August 6, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

U.S. freedoms under serious challenge, UNO speaker contends

Richard J. Lamm, of Waveland was awarded a bachelor of science degree by the College of Sciences, University of New Orleans, in commencement exercises Thursday, July 30.

The retiring dean of the University of New Orleans College of Education, Dr. Milton L. Ferguson, told summer graduates the United States is in the midst of one of the greatest onslaughts on freedom in its history.

"Public education has been peculiarly singled out in our generation for an attack, either knowingly or unknowingly, by those who have, at best, a weak belief in a free people," he said.

"The attackers have been very astute in their selection of education as a target because it is only through education that men in these times can either gain or hold their freedom."

Dr. Ferguson said it seemed evident that most arguments about public education do not "stem" from arguments about reading, writing, and arithmetic but from arguments that are "social, economic and political in consequences."

"The individuals and groups who wish to align America in one particular social category... in one particular economic camp... in one particular political position or another, know if they can discredit America's faith and trust in public schools, that they will have an easier time... tilting the whole of America in the direction of their particular belief," he said.

"It is also quite evident that some people in America have been and continue to be opposed to freedom for all. Some people in America have been and continue to be opposed to freedom to learn."

UNO awarded 342 degrees, including 175 undergraduate and 167 graduate diplomas. Of the latter number, 143 were master's degrees and 10 were doctorates.

Dr. Ferguson, who has been the chief administrator of the UNO College of Education since its beginning as a department, told the graduates that America has the force "which will set men free," that of universal education.

"The world had to wait for America as a people to say to all its youth, 'You can go to high school and college if you want to,'" he said. "Universal education, developed to the levels reached in America, represents an advance in the freedom of men, the consequences of which are still not understood either at home or abroad. If it were understood, some of the current debates in our society would be ameliorated."

Dr. Ferguson said that most of the program of universal education has been carried out through the public school system in this country, a system which has also been used to solve specific problems.

"If we want to put a man in space, we say teach more science in the schools," he said. "If we want to make more money, we say teach more math."

school. If we want to kill fewer people on the highway, we ask the schools to teach our youth to drive. If we wish to bring all our people into the mainstream of American life, we ask the schools to provide equal educational opportunity for all."

Dr. Ferguson said that the major responsibilities for ending segregation and implementing "the concept of freedom for all" were also placed on the public schools.

He said that while the public schools have achieved remarkable success in accomplishing these responsibilities, the public has expected the schools to also maintain a high level of quality.

"This proved to be an impossible task," he said. "How could the schools maintain the same level of quality when they were in the initial stages of trying to rectify for our entire society 200 years of neglect, deprivation and discrimination?"

USM technology laboratory to include robot instructor

The University of Southern Mississippi's College of Science and Technology will get a "helping hand" teaching industrial technology students this fall.

"Hand" is not a complete description, it's more of a "small arm," said Professor

Wes Baldwin. The arm will be controlled through a TRS-80 computer which can be programmed to have the instrument perform the tasks of a small robot.

The "Mini-Mover" Five Robot Arm made possible by a recent educational grant from the Society of Manufacturing Engineers will be used in the industrial technology laboratories for instructional purposes to prepare students for entering careers where highly sophisticated instruments and robots are part of everyday work life.

Robots of this type are very useful to industries where it is necessary to withstand high temperatures or perform repetitious manual labor. "When the arm is exposed to high temperatures it can be programmed to cool itself off by plunging the hot metal into cold water," said Baldwin, who will be one of the industrial technology faculty members instructing students to utilize robots.

USM's robot, expected to arrive from the factory by September, will consist of a five-jointed arm, standing a foot and a half high and weighing six pounds.

Dimensions may make the invention sound small, but Baldwin points out that "Mini-Mover" can do the same work of a larger robot just on a smaller scale.

Large robots can usually manipulate 400 pounds inside a three-foot radius. The five-function arm will pick up a minimum of three pounds and work in an area of a few inches.

Carey offering tuition discount

With rising costs threatening to swamp private schools and colleges, William Carey College on the Coast is offering a tuition discount.

At a meeting of the Administrative Council July 23, the school stated a two-fold purpose: to provide financial assistance to students and to encourage initial enrollments and larger course loads in order to develop the Coast Campus.

To achieve this purpose, Coast Campus Development Scholarships will be awarded all students attending the Coast Campus in accordance with the following schedule:

| Course Load | Regular College (Sem./Hr.) | Tuition per Hr. | Scholarship-Hr. | Per Hr. |
|-------------|----------------------------|-----------------|-----------------|---------|
| 1-3 Hrs. | $67 | $7 | $60 | |
| 4-5 Hrs. | $87 | $15 | $72 | |
| 6 or more | $87 | $18 | $69 | |

Conditions:
1. Student must meet requirements for admission to the College.

2. Eligible students will be requested to file the Financial Aid Form (FAF) necessary for other financial aid consideration.

3. In no case will a combination of other student aid and the Developmental Scholarship be allowed to exceed the regular tuition charge.

In addition to the Coast Campus Developmental Scholarships, the College also provides Basic Educational Opportunity Grants, Work Study Programs, Honors Scholarships, and many other special scholarships to qualified candidates.

For further information, phone 836-4455, or visit Carey on the Coast at 1856 Beach Drive in Gulfport.

SOMETIMES THE OLD WAYS ARE BETTER

Sometimes the old ways are better—and beautiful, too. Now that energy costs have skyrocketed, a Progress ceiling fan can increase your comfort and save you money on energy.

- Reduces or eliminates use of air conditioner in summer.
- Cuts heating costs in winter.
- Do it with a Progress quality ceiling fan. Reversible heavy-duty motor. Solid state continuously variable speed control for whisper quiet operation. Sealed bearings never need oiling.

Come and see it for yourself.

Not only the insurance you carry on your property, but also the insurance you carry on your property, for which you may not have adequate protection, does not include coverage for flood damage. Flood damage is a special risk. It is not covered by standard fire and theft policies. Flood damage is a special risk. It is not covered by standard fire and theft policies.

Previously, local boat owners retreated to the open sea in the event of a hurricane. The NSTL Test Facility, located near a base of the U.S. Navy, provides a safe harbor for large boats. The NSTL Test Facility is located near a base of the U.S. Navy.
